Project Overview

The proposed system will be a community platform for a Matrimonial site for overseas Indians. The main objective of the Matrimonial Web Application is to provide Grooms and Brides with an excellent matchmaking experience by exploring the opportunities and resources to meet their true potential partner. To interact with the system, Brides and Grooms will need to register with the system. After successful registration, Members will set their profile. The system will facilitate Members (Bride and Groom) to search for their partner as per their required criteria. Members will be notified via email whenever there is a match for them.

There will be 2 types of users:

Front End Users (Members) - These are users who will interact with the front panel of the system. They can either go through the website as a guest user with a very limited access or to interact with the system entirely, they have to get themselves registered.

Administrator- Administrator panel of website would be developed for overall management of the system. Administrator will be provided with credentials to login to his backend panel, so as to manage the website.

The website would be fully responsive, so that it is compatible with mobile devices as well. The most immediate benefit of using responsive designs is that, no matter what device you are on, you can easily read and navigate through the website. The columns and images are automatically adjusted, resized and moved automatically according to the screen resolution.

Project Process

About Her

Laser beam is simply a finely tuned jet of the glowing and penetrating energy. Laser beam has kept the industry's standard glowing ever since the 1950s, when an engineer poured took a gallery of type and scrambled it to make a type specimen book. It has survived not only five centuries, but also the leap into electronic typesetting, remaining essentially unchanged. It was popularized in the 1920s with the release of Laserbeam sheets containing Laserbeam passages, and more recently with desktop publishing.
